

Homework

Homework is an essential part of your work. It helps you to make sure that you have learned what you have done during a lesson and to prepare for work to come. It should also help you to work independently at research and planning.

Some departments set homework twice a week and need the work in on the following day; others set work over a longer time span, for example GCSE course work.

Not all departments set written work or reading; observation, making, collecting, research, preparation, learning, even thinking are all homework activities.

Other activities are preparing a talk, watching TV programmes and reporting on them, or getting hold of newspaper articles.

Always write down homework set. Don't put homework off it will only cause problems. Always do your home work to the best possible standard.

Ask your teacher for help if you are struggling. Ask your parents to look at your work and tell them about it. Above all, don't avoid homework or try to deceive your teacher. In the end, you will only waste time and cause trouble, for yourself and others.

And remember, help with homework or catching up work is available EVERY LUNCHTIME in the LIBRARY
